

CHATEAU PEYROS
Madiran Vieille Vignes

Peyros means stony in the Gascon dialect of south-west France, and there are indeed glacial pebbles dotting this vineyard in the lee of the Pyrenees.

But it's more likely the limestone soils that account for the racy minerality of this wine. Fifty year old vines guarantee concentration, as do the grapes themselves: 80% Tannat and 20% Cabernet Franc. Aged in oak barrels, 40% of them new, the wine gains polish and richness. What a beauty! Purple-black color, a brambly nose with plum and sandalwood, and a palate of blackcurrant fruit set off with notes of cocoa and spice.

CHATEAU PEYROS
Madiran Vieille Vignes

Peyros means stony in the Gascon dialect of south-west France, and there are indeed glacial pebbles dotting this vineyard in the lee of the Pyrenees.

But it's more likely the limestone soils that account for the racy minerality of this wine. Fifty year old vines guarantee concentration, as do the grapes themselves: 80% Tannat and 20% Cabernet Franc. Aged in oak barrels, 40% of them new, the wine gains polish and richness. What a beauty! Purple-black color, a brambly nose with plum and sandalwood, and a palate of blackcurrant fruit set off with notes of cocoa and spice.

CHATEAU PEYROS
Madiran Vieille Vignes

Peyros means stony in the Gascon dialect of south-west France, and there are indeed glacial pebbles dotting this vineyard in the lee of the Pyrenees.

But it's more likely the limestone soils that account for the racy minerality of this wine. Fifty year old vines guarantee concentration, as do the grapes themselves: 80% Tannat and 20% Cabernet Franc. Aged in oak barrels, 40% of them new, the wine gains polish and richness. What a beauty! Purple-black color, a brambly nose with plum and sandalwood, and a palate of blackcurrant fruit set off with notes of cocoa and spice.

CHATEAU PEYROS
Madiran Vieille Vignes

Peyros means stony in the Gascon dialect of south-west France, and there are indeed glacial pebbles dotting this vineyard in the lee of the Pyrenees.

But it's more likely the limestone soils that account for the racy minerality of this wine. Fifty year old vines guarantee concentration, as do the grapes themselves: 80% Tannat and 20% Cabernet Franc. Aged in oak barrels, 40% of them new, the wine gains polish and richness. What a beauty! Purple-black color, a brambly nose with plum and sandalwood, and a palate of blackcurrant fruit set off with notes of cocoa and spice.